John Deinhardt was a construction supervisor of the Miracle Theatre renovation and building project from September through November 1995. He was charged with the responsibility for coordinating a major project that converted a 47 year old movie house into a performing arts space. He supervised a construction crew of part paid and part donor labor and scheduled a seven month building project for completion in seven weeks. Actors' Playhouse is a non-profit organization that is dependent upon support from the community. The creative aspect of design and engineering coupled with the fact that our organization depended upon donor labor as well as paid, on a restricted budget, made our building project all the more difficult to accomplish.

John has successfully assisted us in completing our goal to open our building on time. He was respected by his CO-workers, and those that worked under his supervision. Above all, John had 200 percent of his heart and soul in the project. He worked seven days a week and sixteen hour days to help us reach our goal. His attitude was always positive, even under less than favorable circumstances. His knowledge and ability supervised many unforeseen building problems and saved the organization a major amount of money.

I enthusiastically acknowledge John Deinhardt's ability and disposition as a leader, worker, and good critical thinker. He will be an asset to any construction project.
